It is with sincere regret that Boombox listeners such as I wake up the November 12th, 2008 to find that Sirius Programming has decided to cancel our favorite radio station. With out warning, and with no explanation, the channel was replaced with yet another main stream pop channel, leaving no channel on any digital radio to fulfill the need for the break beat, electro rock and remix format.

I hereby ask you to reconsider this decision, eliminating your valued margin stations will result in loss of subscriptions!

That may not mean a lot to a digital radio monopoly, but it means a lot to the listeners that rely on this station as a daily respite and for the purposes of learning about and enjoying music exclusively available on Boombox.

The music format played on the channel that has replaced Boombox overlaps with 9 or more channels already available on Sirius XM, whereas the music format of Boombox overlaps exactly with ZERO other channels available on Planet Earth.

As our benevolent Digital Radio Monopoly PLEASE Consider the need for smaller formats.

Thank you for your consideration.
